In this modern age of basketball, slam dunks have the dramatic emphasis and twisting layups are the celebrated features in highlight reels. Not everyone can dunk the ball but everyone can pull up for a jumper from mid-range.

An effective midrange shooter is as dangerous as the most effective low-post player. In an actual game, breaking up defenses sometimes leave gaps that are spacious enough for a midrange shooter to operate. Players should understand that if they cannot slash through or shoot from beyond the arc, the midrange should be their launching pad.

Learn from Coach Magee the footwork and positioning to release your jumper from midrange!

Def. Screen – A screen, also called a "pick" is a legal block set by an offensive player on the side of or behind a defender in order to free a teammate to take a shot or receive a pass.

The highlight films may detail the eye-catching dunks and the rainbow jump shots from beyond the 3-point arc, but it's the little things that win games. Players have to know how to dribble, pass and play defense. Setting a screen so your teammate can have an unfettered look at the basket is one of the most underappreciated--yet vital--skills in the game.

Coach Magee will teach you the proper way to set a screen along with perfecting your shot!
